

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A multisource antenna includes at least two excitation sources and for spatially channeling energy picked up/radiated by the excitation sources and providing for frequency decoupling between the bands respectively corresponding to the waves received/transmitted by the sources. The sources are arranged on a ground plane to interleave radiating apertures at the level of the spatial and frequency selective arrangements.